NO other six-cylinder car has ever earned, in any year, one-third the public acceptance... one-third the volume of sales... which have been bestowed upon Chevrolet Six during the nine months since its introduction.

This tremendous public acceptance is due to three outstanding facts. To the fact that Chevrolet offered, for the first time in history, a six at the price of a four... To the superb standard of quality in Chevrolet's design, material and workmanship. And to the new, greater performance abilities that Chevrolet Six provided. Chevrolet Six was four years old in experiment, in research, in testing, in proving... before the first Chevrolet Six was placed in the hands of its owner. And that owner... like the million and a quarter owners who followed his example... SOLD HIMSELF on the Chevrolet he bought... on the road, behind the wheel. Why not let us place a Chevrolet Six at your disposal... and form your own opinion of its value. Ask about the GMAC Deferred Payment Plan. C-12-10-13C PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS OF CANADA, LIMITED

Successful Convention

The annual convention of teachers of the Red Deer Independent, held here last week, was one of the most successful of the district, with a total registration of 122 teachers.

After the opening of the convention with the singing of the National Anthem, Mayor G. T. Jackson, welcomed the visiting teachers to Lacombe. Dr. E. M. Sharpe, chairman of the School Board, followed with a welcome on behalf of the board, and also threw a few insights on the schools of 40 years ago. J. Welsh, of Red Deer, replied to the addresses of welcome. In his address he reviewed that important question of the new School Act.

Very instructive and interesting lectures and demonstrations were given during Friday morning's session by Miss R. Lockyer and her class on phonics, and by Professor M. E. Laertes of the University of Alberta on "Have we a science of education," the latter raised a number of important questions regarding our present system.

Miss E. H. Bjorkgren, of Wilmet, S.D., who spent five years in China, in a most interesting talk recounted a number of her experiences in the Orient, and Capt. A. C. L. Adams, superintendent of the Junior Red Cross, reviewed the excellent work done by that organization.

Thursday evening was given over to a very enjoyable program, "The Last Dictatorship," an address by H. G. Scott, LL.B., which held the attention of the entire audience and purported to explain the cause of the Great War.

Miss Kathleen Walters and Miss E. Sims, rendered vocal solos, which were heartily enjoyed, and the dance which followed proved a happy diversion for the remainder of the evening.

Expositions and illustrations by Inspector Gibson, Miss Baker and Mrs. V. S. Allen, of Red Deer, and G. R. Trout, B.A., Camrose Normal school, occupied the Friday morning session, while an elaborated model class room, prepared on glass by Mrs. V. S. Allen featured as the main exhibit of the convention. Miss Rae Chisholm demonstrated the correlation of health to other subjects, by the use of charts and books. The Hon. Irene Parby was then introduced by the chairman, who referred to Mrs. Parby's active interest in the recent decision that women are "persons."

Mrs. Parby gave a general outline of the creative education that is being carried on in many of the schools which she visited in the Old World, and which methods, she felt, tended to the development of greater character, higher ideals and stronger morals. Officers elected for next year are as follows:

Honorary president, Hon. Perren Baker; president, Mr. Whitney; principal of Red Deer High school, vice-president, Miss Macneil; secretary, Miss Murray; committee, the Red Deer school staff.

MINISTER OF FINANCE DEAD

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Canada today mourned the loss of her minister of finance, the Hon. James Alexander Robb.

Stricken with a stroke at noon yesterday when his recovery from pneumonia, from which he had been suffering for more than two weeks seemed certain, Mr. Robb died at 4:05 Monday afternoon.

Mr. Robb, who was 70 years of age, survived his immediate predecessor in office by only a few months. The Right Hon. W. S. Fielding, whom Mr. Robb succeeded as minister of finance in the Mackenzie King government in September, 1920, died last June after a lingering illness.

SUFFOCATED TO DEATH

Merritt, B.C., Nov. 12.—G. B. Armstrong, 65, mayor of Merritt and head of the Armstrong department store, was suffocated to death when his house caught fire about 8 o'clock on Monday morning. Neighbors, noting smoke coming from the residence entered the building, and found Mr. Armstrong in bed, but he was already dead when they carried him out.

Deceased was a brother-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Owen, of Lacombe. Mr. Owen, left for Merritt, on Tuesday on receipt of the sad news.

A. A. McGillivray, K.C., of Calgary, has resigned as leader of the provincial legislature, according to an official announcement made by Mr. McGillivray, Tuesday morning.

"BETTER IN THE SENATE"

Evidently the Canadian Senate is not without friends, chiefly among those who find fault with their days in its well-ventilated chairs. It must be admitted that, in this respect the Upper Chamber, so long as it exists, will have its attractions. But a new method of approach to this desired haven of rest has been revealed during the present tour of Premier King in the west. Hitherto appointment to the Senate has been regarded as the reward of politicians who have served their party well. Senators are expected to have at least some of the wisdom of older statesmen; at all events, they are supposed to be wise enough to know what legislation their party friends in Parliament desire to have approved, and what they reject. While this is not an essential qualification, it often comes in very handy—so they say, they who know the political game as played in Ottawa.

But it is evident that the Senate, in some quarters, is regarded in a more serious way than this, as Premier King discovered while in Saskatchewan. An old man travelled all the way from The Pas, in Manitoba, to interview Mr. King on the subject. He was getting along in years, said this veteran, and had come to the conclusion that the best place for him was the Senate. There was no presentation of credentials, party affiliations or services were not even mentioned. The traveller from The Pas was just an old man whose sun was setting, and he longed to spend the remainder of his days in the company of the other old men who had reached the end of their tether in the realm of active politics.

This aged gentleman, who may not have obtained any eminence in public life, nevertheless has, in his closing days, rendered a public service. He has revealed the Senate in a new light; at all events, has indicated the manner in which it is regarded in some quarters. And the picture has its charm: A home for the weary in whatever walk of life; a resting place for the night approachers, a sort of cosy fire-side by which to linger when "the coals of day burn low in the blue turn of the west."

THANKSGIVING SERVICE

In commemoration of Armistice Day and Thanksgiving, the various churches in Lacombe held a joint service in St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday evening. Rev. R. B. Layton presiding. Flags and poppies were used in draping and decorating the memorial tablets and a large wreath of poppies was placed on the Communion table. Rev. T. H. Chapman and Captain Beck conducted the opening services and a very beautiful sermon by Rev. James Desson, combining both Thanksgiving and the Memorial theme, made a deep impression upon the congregation. Mr. Desson discoursed on the principles for which our soldiers gave their lives and the increase of our appreciation of their sacrifice as the years go by. Two delightful musical selections by a Ladies' Quartette, and a mixed Quartette, and an Anthem by the full choir were much enjoyed.

On Monday morning the two minutes silence was observed in connection with appropriate services in Memorial Park and a wreath of poppies placed on the cenotaph.

The Country School Teacher

There must be some strange fascination in the teaching of children. If there were not it would be hard to explain why so many thousands of men and women find the lure of the profession irresistible and harder to explain why so few, having found how rough a life it is to follow, choose to follow it. There must be some strange fascination in a profession, which, though exacting in its requirements from day to day, still holds those who follow it so fast that they choose to pursue it even voluntarily in their leisure hours. In this voluntary pursuit of new light rural teachers from around Lacombe gathered in the town last week not to plot ways of improving their worldly condition, nor to make known their grievances nor to curse in chorus the day they adopted school teaching for a livelihood, but to learn more about teaching, to learn new and better methods, if there are any, and so to make themselves better servants of society and to their contribution to the nation's life. And all this without immediate hope of reward.

The teacher is one of the most valuable of the public's servants but public service is a thankless task at best. Often the joy of doing is the only reward and up to now, unfortunately, has been only too true of teaching in general and of the lot of the country teacher in particular. Yet she carries on her shoulders the responsibility of training the boys and girls destined to grow up and take their share in the pursuit of farming which is still, and perhaps will always be, Canada's basic industry. Others will drift toward to take part in the direction of commerce, finance or politics. But, however high the pupil may aspire, whatever educational honors he may attain to, whatever distinction an admiring state may shower upon him in later years, the fact remains that it was in the little school-house by the roadside that he made his first step. The country teacher, in her own little way, shares the responsibility of training men and women in the ways of life equally with the chancellor of the university.

More and more the public is coming to recognize the more and more part which these men and women are bearing in the building of the nation. Plans for the improvement of the profession and the reorganization of the school system all bear evidence of this and sooner or later no doubt the teachers will reap the material rewards which they have earned.

MR. MCGILLIVRAY'S RESIGNATION

It has been known for some time that Mr. McGillivray had in mind the step announced yesterday. But the hope persisted that he would continue in the post to which he brought such zeal and ability during the past four years. The regret that his decision causes is far from being confined to the ranks of his party. The whole province is united in its regret. From the first it was recognized how fortunate the Conservative party was to secure him as its leader. Once he was chosen he gave himself up entirely to the heavy task that he had assumed. The party had to be reorganized from the ground up and the general election was only a year away. It was a remarkable feat that he accomplished in that time. He visited every part of Alberta and saw to it that his party had candidates, most of them of high qualifications, in all the constituencies. Though only four seats were won, the basis was laid for much larger direct results at future contests.

To the proceedings of the legislature Mr. McGillivray has made a most valuable contribution. He has been at all times assiduous in the performance of his duties and every question in the discussion of which he participated was clarified as a consequence. Whether one agreed or not with his conclusions, there was never any doubt about what an asset it was to the public life of the province to have a man of his keen intellect in the house. The matters that arose he invariably treated from a broad viewpoint. There is nothing of the petty politician in his make-up.

As he is not resigning his seat, his services will still be available for at least one and probably two more sessions. If, when dissolution comes, he does not seek re-election, the legislature will be much the poorer for his absence.

That Mr. McGillivray finds it imperative to relinquish the leadership will be readily understood. It was fully appreciated at what a sacrifice he undertook the work in which he has been engaged and no one will be disposed to be critical of him because of the move that he has now made. Nevertheless it is to be deplored that it was necessary in the case of one so exceptionally fitted for the functions that he has discharged. He is still, however, a comparatively young man and it is to be hoped that as time goes on, he will be in a position to resume the political career that has been marked by so much substantial achievement and that has held still greater promise.

Here and There

A ship of heroes skippered by one of themselves was the unique feature of the sailing of the Duchess of York on a recent trip from Montreal. Six holders of the Victoria Cross, Britain's most envied and most meritorious of war awards, were on the vessel, which was under the command of Captain Stuart, himself a V.C. They were on their way from Canada to London to take part in the dinner by the Prince of Wales to Victoria Cross men from all parts of the Empire, slated to be held November 9. Other V.C.'s landed on Canadian Pacific liners Minnesota and Empress of Scotland.

The stage is being rapidly set for one of the outstanding developments in Canada in a decade when the English folk dancing and elements of English folk dancing will hold a festival at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, November 12-13. A British opera by a British composer of world-wide fame will be produced for the first time on this continent when "Hugh the Drover," by Dr. R. Vaughan Williams, is put on during the festival, and Canada and Canadians will be introduced to a whole new world of art and beauty.

"We are all primarily conscious of the fact that this country, measured by any of the standards by which the prosperity of a nation can be gauged, is a very prosperous country, with a high standard of material required for waterproofing and surfacing the great roads of the western provinces; is the opinion of Major C. G. Ommann, director of development for the Canadian Pacific Railway, at a dinner given recently in his honor by the St. Catharines Chamber of Commerce.

Robert Hume and George Thornton, veterans of many competitions, have teamed up from Montreal and Lacombe, in the Canadian Pacific Swim Club competition for boys and girls of the province, have carried off the silver trophy and will join the teams from the western provinces for a trip to the Royal Wiltshire Hotel at Toronto as guests of the railway.

Bluminous sand deposits of the McMurray district and along the Athabasca River will eventually be used for the production of material required for waterproofing and surfacing the great roads of the western provinces; is the opinion of Major C. G. Ommann, director of development for the Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal.

Colwood Golf Course, where the second annual Empire Hotel mid-winter golf tournament will be staged in February next, is one of the finest links on the continent, declared Walter Hagen, British open golf champion, who recently played an exhibition game there. "It is a trial course that calls for the best in a player and the park-like surroundings are ideal," he added.

George Johnson, son of Henry Johnson, locomotive engineer with the Canadian Pacific Railway, has been awarded a scholarship for five years at the University of Toronto, following the recent examinations for entrance at that school. He is the resident of The River, Quebec. These scholarships have been offered since 1906, since which year the opportunity for free tuition has been offered by the railway.

THE HONOR OF NATIONS

Incidental to the season of Thanksgiving the people of Canada have been called upon to contemplate the horrors of the war which ended 11 years ago after a million lives had been sacrificed, tremendous quantities of human blood spilled, thousands of men and women maimed for life, homes destroyed, sacred places desecrated and national monuments shattered.

It is hardly possible that the have wrought could have been more complete.

From this picture we turn to consider how we have advanced toward a better order of things. It pleases us to believe that the lives that were wasted, the destruction and the desecration were all the price of a new and lasting peace. Out of the wreckage has arisen, we say, a new resolve that there shall be no more war. Men have come to think in terms of peace, to develop a conscience which is opposed to the settlement of international differences at the point of the bayonet.

And then some of us grow cynical. Our belief in the permanency of the new order begins to waver as we remember how often down the centuries men have voiced the same resolve to revert to no more to armed conflict and fought like the Crusaders in order that the world might be a better place to live in. The post-war catch phrases of centuries ago are so like those of today when we come to study history that we begin to wonder if our own resolves are not just as empty and meaningless.

Remembering these things, we set our hands to peace and treaties and conventions wondering the while whether these parchments will really bring about the peace for which we hope. Something R. B. Bennett said at a semi-public function the other day ought to have reassured those who heard him and those who read his words. He reminded us that most of the nations of the world—would that it were possible to have said all of them—have pledged their honor to renounce war as an instrument of national policy. National honor, then, has become a weapon wherewith to defend the public peace. In defence of that same honor which the nations have fought to maintain they are pledged hereafter to prefer the peace.

If men were willing to lay down their lives and parents ready to sacrifice their sons in defence of their country's honor, how much more willing will they be to refrain from violence in order that that same honor may not be outraged?

In 1914 Britons the world over went to war because they had done otherwise would be to dishonor a pledge they had given to a weaker nation. Now we have pledged our honor to the cause of peace and it has been man's boast throughout history that he prizes honor more than life.

Keep Out Russian Minnionites

Something like a century and a half ago large numbers of Germans emigrated to Russia and settled there, a fact that accounts for the presence of many Schmidts and Schwartzes and Musellers and other Russian families with German names. For 150 years the descendants of these German emigrants have been growing up, apparently quite contented with their new nationality and presumably entirely alienated from the Fatherland whence their ancestors came. But now ill fortune and the Soviet government have fallen upon them, confiscated their resources and left them penniless and destitute. And in the moment of adversity they have turned their faces back to Germany, not because they are Germans (which they are not), but in the hope that the land of their fathers may shelter them on some sentimental grounds. This, according to reports from Kell, the German government is being urged to do by providing them with free passages to Canada and the Argentine. All of which will be a very satisfactory way out of the difficulty from the German point of view.

But what will Canada have to say about it? There are said to be 10,000 of these Russian refugees on their way to Germany, of whom more than 800 have already arrived at Kell. Ten thousand uninvited, destitute immigrants, that is, when Germany does not want and who are to be unloaded into Canada and the Argentine. Their passages, it is true enough, are to be paid but they were destitute when they arrived in Germany, and it follows that they will still be destitute when they reach Canada; and that at a season of the year when our own unemployment problem is moving toward a climax.

Now, where does the Department of Immigration's restrictive measure against "non-preferred" immigrants begin to function? Germans are not non-preferred immigrants. On the contrary, our experience of them has been entirely gratifying. But these people are not Germans and no stretch of law or the imagination can make them so. Russia did not want

TAKING CARE OF PUBLIC HEALTH

(By Edna Kells)

Babies are the first concern of public health work the world over. Give the baby the right start in life and many of the ills from which the adult suffers will disappear, authorities say. Consequently the Child Welfare Clinics are recognized as an important branch of the work, and those that have been operating in Alberta have won the good will of many thousands of mothers.

Four nurses were engaged in this work in Alberta during the past summer. They held 121 clinics and examined 2606 children. Of these 1099 were babies, and 1466 children of pre-school age. Only 772 of this number were found free from defects; Surely there is need of such clinics to check up conditions.

The nurses in charge of this work were Miss Blanche Emerson, Miss E. M. Davidson, Miss C. Lonsdale, and Miss Black. Years of experience, together with special training have made the clinic nurses expert at this work which is largely educational. It is their aim to bring about an era of better babies and healthier school children.

This year the work extended from Coultis on the C.P.R. near the boundary line to Beryon on the Northern Alberta railway in the Peace River country. A local organization assumes the responsibility of negotiating with the Department of Public Health for a visit from the nurse and makes the local arrangements. The nurse carries her equipment with her and on her arrival, quickly transforms the hall, school, or church to suit her needs. Sometimes the nurses travel in pairs, enabling them to handle the clinic with greater ease. At such times one nurse takes the name and age of the child, nationality of the parents, weights and measures of the child and turns him over, with her findings to the examining nurse. She in turn looks for defects as children of that age are susceptible to, such as malnutrition, defective teeth, infected tonsils, adenoids, fallen arches, rickets, and eye trouble. If she finds any, she advises the mother as to the course she should pursue, which frequently involves consultation with the family physician.

Diets are considered of the utmost importance, and when breast feeding is impossible, milk feeding is recommended. Most mothers are taking a keen interest in diets and many are following scientific methods of feeding and have their children well trained in the matter of sleeping. Diet slips showing the proper foods for children of different ages are given out and these are supplemented by special advice for individual cases. Proper posture, breathing exercises, plenty of fresh air, and sun baths are recommended as a means to better health.

It was a revelation to the visitor to note the difference between the children in perfect health and those suffering from some minor ailment. The former sleep well, eat their food without question, are good natured and give little trouble. The latter are inclined to be nervous or peevish, pick at their food, sleep irregularly, are underweight, and give their mothers trouble and anxiety.

At one clinic held this summer in a small town, though harvest was at its height, fifty children were brought for examination, and this was not considered an unusually large clinic. Of the fifty, twenty-four were free from defect. It is apparent that nationality has something to do with the health of children. Children of the Nordic race, the nurses find, are usually placed larger, and healthier than those of other races. The prosperity or adversity of the district usually is reflected in the children also, though it is not always the most prosperous district that shows the least malnutrition among children.

"WHAT'S COMING TO THEM"
 The other morning the news columns carried the account of a gruesome affair—wherein Rocco Maggio was murdered by three pistol bullets and shot a few hours later. It was a sad story and it was made more the brighter by the intimation that his murderer made pretense of being a friend. Maggio, it appears was somewhat notorious in his own circle and with the police, to whom he was known as "The Bourgeois," "The King of Extortionists" and by several other picturesque names; he himself had been arrested for extortion and blackmail and convicted for murder and he was "one of the most feared men in 'Little Italy'." The Chicago newspaper quotes the police of his city as expressing the opinion that Maggio had "got what was coming to him."

If this is the attitude of the Chicago police it may be a partial explanation of why the stretch of that city's reputation rises to high heaven. Whatever our policemen in this country may sometimes think (and all the regulations ever written will not control their private opinions) we find no record of any of them actually approving of a treacherous murder by saying that the victim had "got what was coming to him."

According to our standards of law and order an extortioner and a blackmailer has got what is coming to him only when he is behind the bars and a murderer has got what is coming to him only when the trap is sprung beneath his feet. We have not yet learned to express our thanks publicly to murderers number two, because he rode the community of murder number one. As an individual, number one is as much entitled to the protection of the law as the most innocent citizen in the land and the matter of what is "coming to him" is for the law to decide.

The hand that inflicted death on Maggio was that of an apparently unknown stranger who called on his victim at a grocery store—a pretty place to look for a "convicted murderer," by the way, and whose hand was, it is feasible to believe, may never be known.

THAT DRY WELL

The human body can live without food for six or seven days if there is plenty of water to drink, but it will not live three days if deprived of food and water. Water is essential to the proper growth of the body and to its proper functioning. Not just water, but pure water, is a necessity.

We have finished one of the driest seasons for many years, sloughs and creeks are dry all over the province. Wells are either very low or quite dry. Under these conditions water has to be used from where it can be found, irrespective of whether it is known to be pure or not. Already several cases of typhoid fever have been admitted to city hospitals from country points. Typhoid is water born disease.

Again when moisture in any quantity does come, the well will fill and much of the water will be surface water—always dirty and impure. Before using the newly filled well water, boil and chlorinate and send a sample to the Health Department to be tested. It is worth it.

Tells of the Pioneer Days

Mr. W. F. Puffer, the first member from the Lacombe division to the Alberta Parliament, speaking before the members of the W.I. on Saturday, recalled many episodes from his early days in Alberta. Arriving in the Southern part of the Province, in 1880, he spent one season as Manager of Col. Walker's ranch. The following summer he passed through Calgary on the construction of the turning of the first sod for laying the Calgary-Edmonton Railway. Mr. Puffer vividly described the scene of merry making and feasting in which hundreds of people took part.

Hon. Edgar Dewdney, L.S. Gov. of Northwest Territories was the main speaker of the occasion.

Settling about sixty miles north of Calgary, near what is now Olds, Mr. Puffer built a small cabin and installed his family. His difficulty in digging a well in the depth of winter and the thrill he experienced when he obtained water were described.

The great blizzard of 1892 when cattle drifted before the wind for a hundred miles and hundreds of head of stock were frozen and buried under snow in the outcrops was brought vividly before his hearers. Mr. Puffer paid tribute to his wife, whose courage in the face of these early dangers and privations was a source of inspiration to him. Although Mr. Puffer, who was alone during and for some time after the blizzard, was attacked by one of the wild range steers while she was attempting to feed and milk her cows and although a large grey wolf hounded the premises so that she was obliged to lock the children in the house whenever she ventured out to do the chores. Following this was a raging prairie fire, when by great effort they barely managed to save their house.

Mr. Puffer also read a part of the address given by the Hon. Frank Oliver on the occasion of the 50th Anniversary of the Edmonton Exhibition in 1920, and which gives in detail the conditions under which the pioneers made their home in this land—as follows:

"I understand that I have been honored with the invitation to take part on this occasion I am one of the very few still on the scene since the Great Divide who were privileged to attend the first Edmonton Exhibition of 50 years ago."

When I came in 1876 wheat flour was a luxury, not a necessity and sold at $15 to $20 per 50 lb. sack, when there was any for sale, which was only at intervals.

Police horses at Fort Saskatchewan were fed on oats grown at Sun River, Montana, freighted across country by riding teams of mules, horses or oxen to Calgary and then on Red River carts by ponies or oxen to Edmonton.

The first night I slept in a house in this district the winter and his wife sat down to dinner of boiled mutton and "ladyfinger" potatoes and were specially fortunate in having the potatoes.

The staple food of the country was buffalo meat and whitefish. The nearest railroad was in the state of Minnesota, far beyond Winnipeg. Mail came once in three weeks on the way from Winnipeg. Truly we were a people apart. But we were here as pioneers, not as exiles. We had come to help ourselves. What helped the colony helped us.

The president, Mrs. Roberts, thanked the speaker for this first hand information regarding the early days from one who had experienced them.

VIEW WITH ALARM IMPORTS OF MUTTON

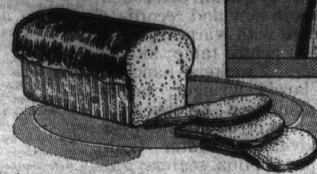

Producers of high quality Canadian lamb view with alarm the increasing imports of frozen mutton from Australia and New Zealand, as it is feared that with the present marketing machinery the identity of the fresh domestic article is in grave danger of being lost. According to figures from Ottawa this country imported 1,900,000 pounds of lamb and mutton in 1927. The next year the amount had risen to 2,600,000 or over thirty per cent., while for the first seven months of the present season 3,500,000 pounds have been imported. At the present rate, the increase in imports this year will amount to well over 50 per cent.

Such an inflow of imported meat, most of which arrives in the frozen state, is bound to have an influence on the selling of fresh Canadian lamb. It is pointed out, because the average person sees no way of distinguishing the domestic product from the imported. He may think he is getting the best Canadian but he is not sure, nor will he be, until some system of grading or stamping has been worked out and generally adopted, so that even the purchase of the smallest cut of lamb will know whether he is getting the Canadian fresh product or the imported frozen. Sheepmen report a general agitation along this line, following the introduction of grading and stamping in other food lines by the Dominion authorities.

While such a step has been urged from time to time by sheep and wool organizations throughout the country the demand is becoming more urgent, in view of the recent decline in wool values. Prices in the latter line, it is pointed out, are considerably below those prevailing a year ago, and the immediate prospect is not encouraging. Reports from Australia and New Zealand tell of failures among sheepmen, and undoubtedly breeding stock will be sacrificed. When the full effect of low wool prices hits these two countries which have a total sheep population of no far short of 125,000,000 undoubtedly an enormous avalanche of lamb and sheep carcasses will then be thrown on the market and Canada will receive her share.

Premier King Receives Hearty Welcome to West

The wonderful feeling of friendliness towards the present government now prevailing throughout the west was attested by the Right Hon. W. Mackenzie King, Premier of Canada in his address to representatives of Liberal executives throughout Northern and Central Alberta Thursday morning last at Edmonton. The Premier alluded to the change of attitude on the part of those in the west who did not see eye to eye with the government at the time it was formed. He emphasized this outstanding feature as the most gratifying aspect of his present tour, and instanced the friendly disposition of the different sections of the community together with what amounted to the general favourable tone of the western press. It was, said the Premier, significant of the public recognition of the fact that the administration was endeavoring to govern the country upon broad and generous principles. The government realized and he asked his hearers to do the same, that in the administration of such a vast domain as Canada, the question of space, and the economic interests of the different parts of the country must be taken into consideration. For this reason government must be broad and generous, for the purpose of arriving at a happy mean in all matters of legislation. The conference through Dr. Salmond of Calgary, presented the Premier with an inspiring resolution of confidence in the government and himself, and in reply the Premier said that the meeting was one of the happiest he had attended in the course of his tour. He was delighted at the splendid attendance and at the cheerful tone of the gathering. It gave, he said, new heart and spirit to all those who were there representing the government.

In addition to the Premier, addresses were given by Hon. Colonel J. L. Balfour, who brought a message of greeting from the maritime provinces, and the Hon. Charles Stewart. Premier King paid a great tribute to the services rendered by the Hon. Charles Stewart, the member for West Edmonton, and said that it was almost impossible for him to describe to them how much it meant to Alberta to have Mr. Stewart as a member of the government. Time and time again Mr. Stewart had fought a strenuous battle upon matters which he held opinions concerning the good of the country as a whole.

W. S. Campbell presided over the conference, which was attended by some 60 delegates.

Attempt to Stabilize Wheat Prices

The policy of the Canadian Wheat Pool in holding its wheat off the world's markets in the expectation of ultimately getting a considerably higher price than is obtainable at present has been the subject of considerable comment, some of it critical, some of it sympathetic. There are, however, few people in Canada, who do not welcome anything that will aid the farmer, provided there is no injustice to any other section of the community. The view that the market situation as far as wheat is concerned will improve has been approved by a number of financial leaders and the feeling that this opinion is the right one is strengthened by the action of Chairman Legge, of the U.S. Farm Board, who declared last week that the unprecedented liquidation on the stock exchanges had also an effect on wheat values "which is entirely unwarranted."

The New York Times commented on the situation saying that "Prices have gone off, as they have been going pretty steadily ever since the legislation creating the Farm Board, and still farmers are rushing the wheat to market. In the view of Mr. Legge, 'producers should not be forced to sell on a market affected by these conditions.' Accordingly, he has arranged for a loan of $100,000,000 to the National Grain Corporation with the assurance that Congress will vote added funds if necessary. What is the purpose of this advance of government money? Obviously to keep wheat off the market. If the farmers can borrow on it without selling, they may be able to hold it for a few months. Then if this scheme of stabilizing the price of wheat—which plainly means forcing it up artificially—is successful, the stocks on hand can be sold at higher prices and the loans paid off."

Almost the same day the attorney-general of the United States was telling the meeting of the American Bar Association at Memphis that the government intends to enforce the anti-trust laws with vigor and without discrimination. One of their objects was to prevent precisely what it proposed to do, with government aid, in the matter of wheat. Such operations had ugly names like "regrating" under the common law, and our federal statutes have aimed to strike at combinations and monopolies that by agreement keep back products of utility or necessity in order to be able to demand higher prices from the purchaser. If this is not exactly what the farm board and the farm co-operatives are planning to do in the case of wheat, perhaps Attorney-General Mitchell will explain why not. He said at Memphis that the fundamental intent of the anti-trust laws is to keep open "avenues of industrial opportunity to the initiative of the individual citizen." What will the individual farmer, not a member of the co-operative, and so not able to borrow money on his wheat which he must sell at a loss, think of the government plan to raise prices for the others? "No question is raised here about the desirability of such a procedure. But it is useless to shut our eyes to what it implies. It means that the government, despite all protests, is itself going into the business of agriculture. It means also that methods of raising prices and milking the consumer are to be tolerated on behalf of the farmers, which, if they were even proposed in the instance of large manufacturers, would cause the very heavens to be rent with cries of indignation and outrage."
